EXPLANATORY NOTE

Teachers play a great role in imparting knowledge, imbuing values, and teaching skills to the country's most valuable asset, the people. Hence, it is important that the teachers' needs and welfare must be given utmost attention.

Republic Act No. 4670, or the Magna Carta for Public School Teachers provides that teaching hours of teachers shall not be more than six hours. Department of Education (DepEd) issued Memorandum 291 s. 2008 allowing teachers to allot six hours for actual classroom teaching a day, with the remaining two hours to be spent in teaching related activities. Thus, teachers are required to render a total of eight hours for the day.

Teachers clamor for higher pay but shorter working hours. Their work schedule leaves them stressed out and exhausted. Reducing their number of working hours will allow them to have more time to innovate and enhance classroom teaching and result to a more productive workforce.

This proposed measure, therefore, seeks to reduce the working hours of all public school teachers, whether engaged in actual classroom teaching or not, to a six-hour workday or a total of a thirty-hour workweek. This would be a great relief for the teachers. Any work performed in excess of six hours a day shall be paid an additional compensation of at least twenty-five percent of their regular remuneration.

They shall, therefore, be exempted from the generally established rule on eight-hour workday under the Civil Service Rules. Book V of the Administrative Code of 1987 also states that: "Officers and employees of all departments and agencies except those covered by special laws shall render not less than eight hours of work a day for five days a week or a total of forty-hours a week, exclusive of time for lunch."

To ensure improved working condition for public school teachers and to alleviate their standard of living, there is a need to enact a legislative measure that will grant them a six-hour workday plus additional compensation for work rendered beyond six hours.

In view of the foregoing, approval of this proposed measure is earnestly requested.
